

About the Global March ATX

A partner with the international grassroots movement demanding an end to the trade in ivory and rhino horn driving elephants and rhinos to the brink of extinction, The Global March for Elephants & Rhinos ATX is a local 501(c)(3) non-profit organization working locally to save species globally:

- Raise awareness of threats facing species
- Raise funds to support top wildlife conservation organizations working on the front lines to save, protect and secure a future for endangered species
- Influence CITES, governments, lawmakers, representatives and Ambassadors to enact laws to end the ivory and rhino horn trade permanently and implement policies that protect endangered wildlife
- Provide education and tools to the Public to take action: best donation options, petitions, events, social media campaigns and educational outreach programs
- Organize, direct local march and fundraising events

Marching and fundraising annually in solidarity with over 140 cities worldwide, the Global March ATX takes action locally to impact laws and policy to prevent species vanishing into extinction.

The Global March has evolved into the world's most powerful grassroots movement to save endangered species. The March provides people from across the globe information and tools to come together as ONE VOICE to demand action for protection of elephants, rhinos and other critically threatened wildlife.

The Global March helped achieve one of our top goals by influencing China to shut down their ivory trade. But our work continues by taking action to list the Elephant on Appendix I as well as save rhinos and other threatened species from ongoing slaughter.
